A Word from the Dean

This year I've softened toward New Year's Resolutions.

My resistance, at least I believe, was theological and experiential, believing that the agent of change comes into us, from God, from grace, rather than from within us, from will-power, from the law. And the detritus of failed resolutions to make ourselves better, different, that certainly played a role too.

So why do I feel differently in this moment? Not because I'm anticipating different results from myself or from others, but because I believe this longing can represent something that is deeply Christian: hope. The author of Hebrews notes, "Faith is the assurance of things hoped for, the conviction of things not yet seen" (Hebrews 11:1). Hope, as Paul notes, moves with faith and love, and these powers of God do change us and the world around us, enabling us to abide in a reality greater than what merely exists on the surface. We exist and belong to something larger, more redemptive, reconciling.

May the God of hope fill you with all joy and peace in believing, so that by the power of the Holy Spirit you may abound in hope.

- Romans 15:13

We abide in something greater; hope is grounded in substance.

In November 1989, what was Soviet-Bloc Czechoslovakia experienced what came to be known as the Velvet or Silent Rebellion. Without violence, in the span of slightly over a month, more than 40 years of Soviet rule was overthrown. Vaclav Havel, author, poet, and playwright, became the president, and when asked how it was possible, responded:

"We had our parallel society. And in that parallel society we wrote our plays and sang our songs and read our poems until we knew the truth so well that we could go out to the streets of Prague and say, 'We don't believe your lies anymore' – and communism had to fall."

The various -isms, political, philosophical, cultural, artistic, moral – Stoicism, Cynicism, Romanticism, Realism, Pragmatism, to name a few – see in a mirror dimly. The same is true, of course, for you and me. But we have hope, we gather, we hear again the message of the gospel, we sing our songs, we love one another in the love that has been given to us in Jesus Christ our Lord. Change is possible.

- Craig

Behold my servant, whom I uphold, my chosen, in whom my soul delights; I have put my Spirit upon him; he will bring forth justice to the nations. He will not cry aloud or lift up his voice, or make it heard in the street; a bruised reed he will not break, and a faintly burning wick he will not quench; he will faithfully bring forth justice.

- Isaiah 42:1-3

And when Jesus was baptized, immediately he went up from the water, and behold, the heavens were opened to him, and he saw the Spirit of God descending like a dove and coming to rest on him; and behold, a voice from heaven said, "This is my beloved Son, with whom I am well pleased."

- Matthew 3:16-17
